The screenshot shows a DeviantArt gallery page for the artwork 'Origines' by the user Deevad. The gallery consists of a vertical sequence of eight panels. The top seven panels are small, square comic book panels showing a character in a dark, atmospheric setting with a glowing orb. The final panel is a larger, rectangular illustration of a character flying through a dark sky with a glowing orb. The DeviantArt interface includes a navigation bar at the top with 'Prev', 'All', and 'Next' buttons, and a 'SUBMIT' button. On the right side, there are social sharing options (Note, Share, Tweet), an 'Edit' button, and a 'Delete' button. Below these are 'Sta.sh Apps' for importing to DeviantArt Muro, a notification that the image is large enough to sell as a print, a 'Print Not Enabled' button, and a 'Download' button (JPG 920 x 4016). At the bottom right, there is a 'More from Deevad' section displaying a grid of nine smaller artwork thumbnails.

The screenshot shows the homepage of the Pepper & Carrot website. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the site's logo and the tagline "the Open Webcomic by David Revoy". The main navigation menu includes links for "Webcomics", "Blog", "Philosophy", "Contribute", "Sources", and "Author". There are also social media icons for Twitter, Facebook, YouTube, and RSS. The banner text reads: "a free, libre and open-source webcomic supported directly by its patrons to change the comic book industry!". A "More information" button is located in the bottom right of the banner. Below the banner, there are two columns of content. The left column is titled "Latest episode:" and features a thumbnail for "Episode 7: The wish" with a date of 30/04/2015. Below the thumbnail is a call to action: "become a patron of Pepper&Carrot on patreon". The right column is titled "News and Update:" and contains three items: "Episode 7: The wish" (30/04/2015), "Pepper&Carrot Linux O.S." (01/04/2015), and "Episode 6: The potion contest" (28/03/2015).
